KEYNOTE SPEAKER: SHANE SALTER

Shane Salter is one of many teens to age out of foster care without a permanent family. He was born to a teen mom who struggled with drug addiction, landing himself and his younger brother in the New York foster care system. In the end, his brother was adopted and Shane was not. Despite the odds, Shane graduated high school as valedictorian and went on to earn several degrees. He has worked as Chief of Staff in the Office of Children, Youth, Families and Elders for the Mayor of DC and is a renowned author, advocate, and speaker. He is also an adoptive father himself.
